The question is still agitating the noddles of some Congressmen as to what shall be done with the Southern States after the rebellion is quelied. We have expressed our opinion before. It is to do nothing do so no one doubts. It is only the powerful "combinations" that the war is deo'ared against. Repress them and the trouble is over. If necessary to enforce the laws of the United States, establish military res's in the States, and leave the rest alone. It is all that can be done under the Constitution. If some of the States for unstained by any unstatesmaniike action, Washington, that is their look out, not oure. The injury is to them, and not to the Government. Of what importance is it really to the United States if they neglect the du. gress will offer aid to any State that wishes from Fort Donelson with a portion of their ties devolving upon them as States? It to abolish slevery, leaving it where it is, at does not take one dollar from the revenue; it does not deprive the citizens of the other States of any right or privilege. As far as the Constitution can decide, they are members of the Union, and it will have perfect control over them. It is this which the oath of the President requires him to do. and nothing more; to do more is to viclate this oath. To establish a despotio clearly violate that clause of the Con. some people see. stitution guaranteeing to the States imaginary diffionities ec long as all of the laws of the United States are enforced. Whatever other laws are necessary in the State, it is for its people to pass or neglect them as they choose. They cannot be forced to do it, even if the Constitution gave the power. You may lead a horse to water, but you cannot make him drink. The Constitution, however, does not give the power, and the neglect of the States to perform their local duties is an evil beyond its coope to correct. Let us suppose, for ilinstration, Carolina were repressed, and all of the laws power in the Constitution. Carolina were repressed, and all of the laws power in the Constitution.

If This Legislature will adjourn—when? had the assurance of General Johnston that they discovered their mistake, and began to her mail scries established, the debte due Senate will do nothing. it; me of the other States regularly coliested by due process of law, in the Federal Courts having jurisdiction in her limits: what harm falls upon any one but the disloyal clusens for failure to establish a government to scoure their rights against one another? The nearer the question is viewed, the plainer it becomes. It is, of course, a matter to be seriously regretted that these States do not at once return to their allegiance; as much so as it is to be regretted that they ever departed from it. Ever since the election in 1856 the conspiracy has assumed a dangerous shape. If the country waited six years with patience and forbearance for the destruction of the Government, now, with all its power and victories, the certainty of its success, it ought to wait at least a like time for the people to understand what is the true question.

The Southern States, even South Carolina, wili in time return. All that ie necessary is to wait with due patience, and for the Constitution sions to be vigorously enforced. That there will be temperary difficulties it is felly to deny, just as it is folly to deny that the people of the States will not eventually overcome them. This war is to maintain the Constitution of the United States. The Constitution of the States is a question belonging to the people residing in each of them.

There will be, after the advance of our armies, and the quelling of the rebellion, a period, and, we trust, a brief period, in which it wili be necessary for some supreme military law to be instituted to protect the people, and prevent disorders. As the Government will have crushed out the rebeilious mob iaw, the first and highest duties will be to declare, as Buell did at Nashville, that he had nothing to do with State institutions; nothing but to protect

The best way in such cases, when a military government is necessary to protect the merle_ie for it to be made as brief as possibic. As soon as the people elect a Con. vention, let the duty of protecting the local hands. So far as possible, this Government of the State, or sections of a State-for the military will often be able to occupy porticas only of one or more States should be placed in the hands of citizens of the State or "Department." It may be that the General commanding only the portion of a State, will call upon the people of the entire State to assemble in convention in order to relieve himself of responsibilities, and to aid the due enforcement of the laws.

We see that the Hon. Andrew Johnson, of Tennesere, assumes the military authority in his native State, and calls upon the people to assemble in convention, to declare upon the acts which the United States has deplaced iliegal. It could be given into no better hands. He fought with vigor and influence for the Union, and around him the .Tennessee loyalist throws the mantle of States Rights, and gives to him the robe and crown of Union.

In the chapter of accidents, an unexpected copy of the Richmond Examiner and a copy of the Cincinnati Gazette came to hand on Tuesday, and we were forced to contrast the accounts of the two recent and important battles of the East and West. From two different courose we learned what Kentucky did at Fort Donelson with two regiments, and what our dear old mother, Virginia, did at Roanoke. The 25th Kentucky reported, officially, the loss of 12 killed and 57 wounded—total, 69.

The 17th Kentneky reported 7 killed, 30 wounded and 1 missing-total, 38. The entire killed, wounded and missing of the two regiments was 19 killed, 87 wounded and 1 missing—total, 107.

The Reanoke affair is perfectly incompre hensible. We hope to see it possession of all the railroads, and the owners of vehicles refused to hire them out, unless the hirer should pay about the cost of carriages and horses. Notwithstanding these exherbitant demands, large numbers paid the prices demanded and left the city. During Sunday a report reached the city that Generals Pillow and Floyd had escaped

In the morning a small portion of the public stores was distributed, but an order was soon promulgated countermanding the distribution, and many a "poer, lone woman," and not a few men, who had reached the scene "just in time to be too late," turned away grievously disappointed. It was announced as the determination of Gen. POSTAL FACILITIES IN KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE .- The Post Office Department is actively engaged in preparation for the restoration of postal facilities in all that part of Kentucky and Tennessee recently recovered from the possession of the rebels. As scon as it is ascertained that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad is in condition to transport the mails, two route agents will be appointed, and the usual mail facilities resumed. From the South.

From the Knoxville Register, Feb. 8.1 In a short article a few weeks ago, announcing the adjournment of the conri-martial in this city, we promised to furnish more in detail some of the facts connected with the burning of the railroad bridges in East Tennessee. It will be remembered that there were five bridges destroyed by the Linocin traitors, to wit: the Hoiston bridge, the Lick Creek, the Hiwassee, and two across the Chickamauga, in Hamiiton connty—ali coonrring on the same night, the night of the 8th or the morning of the 9th of November. An attempt was made also at the same time to destroy the Strawberry Piains bridge, which was prevented by the heroic conduct of the watchman, Keelan. No doubt efforts were also made to destroy the bridge at London, and it doubtless would have been done had not a military force been stationed there. These concurring facts indicated most clearly s general conspiracy for the destruction of all the bridges frem Bristol to Chattanooga, the 31, and we will give it to our readers and a general uprising of the Unionists in East Tennessee The latter would have occurred in connection with the former had it not been for the prompt action of the military authorities of the Confederate States in this end of the State, and the failure of the Linecia forces to push a column across the mountains, as had been promised the Unionists here.

The uprising of the Unionists manifested itself in several localities by the assemblege of armed men for the purpose of resistance to the Confederate Government, to wit: In the counties of Carter, Sevier, Bradley and Hamilton. Expeditions were fitted out with dispatch by our military commanders, and the insurrections in the various localities promptly suppressed. Many of those who were in arms, and those whose conduct had been such as to incite rebellion and insurrection, aithough not actually in arms, were taken prisoners, and, by order of the Way Department, sent to Tuscalors as prisoners of war. None of the actual bridge burners were arrested, except those concerned in the Lick Creek bridge in Green county. Ten or twelve of these were captured, two of whom were executed at Greenville npon their own confession, and the remainder sent to Knoxville for trial by a military commission, three of whom were punished with death upon their own confessions of their guilt. As we have stated before, these persons were all guaranteed a fair trial before the board of officers convened for that purpose, having the benefit of all their testimony, of all the laws geverning oriminal trials, and of the most distinguished connsel that could be produced.

The facts connected with the burning of the Lick Creek bridge, as they appeared in the testimony ellcited by the conrt-martial, have come into cur possession from an au thentic source, and are as follows:

A man by the name of David Fry, in conneotion with Witliam R. Carter, both oiti-The Buffalo Commercial says during | zens of East Tennessee, but who had lately deserted the land of their birth, fled to Kentucky, and connected themselves with the enemies of their country, returned to East Tennessee after the repulse of Gen. Zoilicoffer's command at Rockoastie Hill, for the purpose of inciting a conspiracy with the traitors on this side, which would result in the entire destruction of the railroad facilities here, and then break up and entirely cut off communication between Virginia and the remaining States of the Confederacy, prevent the transportation of troops, provisions, and munitions of war, where the bank, drifted with snow, swept invasion of our State. These two men, as Anderson, and then concealed at the of a Union man, sent, as one of the wit-Piains bridge, but who, with his gang of fifteen men, was repulsed by Keelan single handed and alone, Pickens himself falling seriously wounded

> It is known that Fry and Carter passed on into Roancke county, and parted at Kingston. At this point we lose sight of Carter, as no evidence has yet appeared of his whereabouts after that time. Fry, however, proceeded on his journey up the country, passing through London (no doubt making every arrangement for the destruo tion of that bridge), then passing through Blount county, and finally reaching Greene county two days before the burning of Lick Creek bridge.
> Traveling, as he dld, at night, and iying by in daylight, steaithily and treacherously reeping from one traltor's house to another his movements could not be traced until he arrived, on the night of Wednesday, the 6th of November, at the house of Anderson Walker, in Greene ocunty. Here he re-mained until the night of Thursday, the 7th, when he proceeded to Martin Walker's, arriving about eight o'clock at night. At Martin Walker'e he met his wife, and remained until two o'clock in the morning of the 9th, stating to Walker that he was on his way to Kentucky, but wanted to see a friend near Midway (Liok Creek bridge), and asking if Jacob Harmon was as good a Union man as ever. As appeared from the testimony, Fry made no revelation to Walker of his plans; but starting as he did at two o'clook, and not being familiar with the roads, Walker piloted him about three miles in the direction of Midway. After leaving Walker, Fry stopped at the bouse of Daniei Smith, a noted Union man. living five or slx miles from the bridge, arriving there about one honr before daylight. immediately Fry laid his plans before Smith, who agreed to act as a messenger from Fry to Jacob Harmon, to communicate to Harmon that he (Fry) was at Smith's house, that he had come to destroy the railroad, and that he wanted to see Harmon as Smith's house that morning. This message was communicated by Smith to Jacob Harmon about eight o'clock on the morning of the 8th of November, and accordingly Harmon, who was a leading Union spirit in the neighborhood, repaired to Smith's house, where the plans were unfoided, and the plot and programme agreed upon. Harmon was the neighborhood, and gather the Unionists, assembling them at his house on that night, while Fry would remain at Smith's until nightfall, and then repair to Harmon'e house to consummate the conspiracy.

Fry drew forth a United States flag, and, preading it upon the table in the middle of the room, oailed upon his followers to sur round that emblem of the Union and take with him the oath of aliegiance. This was iate in the night; and after the whole plo had been fully understood the conspirators surrounded the table in groups, and, by di-rection of the leader, placed their left hands upon the folds of the flag, raising aloft their right hands, and ewearing to support the Constitution of the United States, to Aroused thus to the highest plich of malice and revenge, the chief of the ecaspiratora immediately led the way to the bridge, and was followed in eager haste by the willing orowd. The Confederate guard, consisting of five soldiers, watching the bridge, were immediately surrounded by the inturiated mob, and were held in close confinement, while Fry, still leading the way, and still followed by the boidest of his clan, hastened to the wooden structure, applied the torch, and the whole was consumed and burned to the ground in an hour. Upon returning to the guarded soldiers, Fry graciously extended to them' their lives upon the condition that they would take the oath of allegiance to the United States—saying that now "he had them under hie thumb, and the d-d telegraph and railroad would tell upon them no longer." Magazine, for February, devotes an article of thirty pages and more to "the defense of Canada," assumes the fact of a war with the United Statee in 1863, and welcomee it with satisfaction. "The campaign," says Blackwood, "is just as likely to end by establishing a new frontier for Canada, with Portland on one fisnk and Lake Ontario on the other, as by leaving the enemy in permanent possession of a mile of Canadian territory." The writer argues that there will be no rupture of the peace now existing with the United States, until their government can place gunboats on the lakes in force adequate to the command of the St. Lawrence and its obain of inland ceas. The object of the proposed war with the United States is to obtain a rectification of Shanks' argument, these gambons were the houndary bringing the line of Canada ordered and advertised for before General down to the open sea at Portland, and giving symmetry and strength to their North American empire.

FORTERSS MONROE, March 7 .- A flag of truce from Norfolk brought down the commandant of the French steamer. He represents that there was great excitement at Norfolk. The hotels were swarming with officers from the Gulf States. The Virginia troops have been sent away. The people dread the destruction of the city in case of an attack. A strong force is concentrating at Norfolk to check Gen. Burnside, who was reported at Winton in force, and was Hollingshade, of the Tenth Louisiana At this stage of the proceedings, on motion of Mr. H. Burkhardt, the following Regiment, to his father in Baton Rogue. I quote only the portion of the epistle which relates to military matters. Its date is Feb. ruary 27, 1852:

"The d-d Yankees are whipping us, or at least it looks so. General Polk says Tilghman always was an Abolitionist, and that Buckner was a coward. As for Pillow and shoulders, clear and ribbed sides (that and Floyd, the dirty thieves, I hope I will will be sold very low), 850 saoks No. 1 live to see either of them, and I will not want to live another day if I don't shoot them on sight. The Yankees are coming down to Columbus after ns. I am afraid we will have to give in if they bring all their gunboats to shoot at us. "Anything but the infernal gunboats," says Gen. Polk. But I hear we are to leave Columbus in a few days. I don't know where we will go. I think we had better go some place where the gunboats can't reach us. Some of our boys are getting discouraged, but I still feel sure we can't be conquered. At least I want to try it again before my time is out, which will be next month. I will go back to the store after that, because I den't like soldier's life. MACK."

Interesting from Savannah. The United States steam transport Erics. son, Captain Cole, arrived here early yester-day morning, with passengers and freight and a large mall. She experienced a heavy gale on the 3d and 4th instants from sast to northwest. One of the passengers of the Ericsson, who comes from Savannah, reports the citizens of that place to be in a terrible state of repidation at the advances which the Union troops are making towards Savannah, and are sending their slaves and other valuable property late the interior daily. Hundreds of oitizens have already left the city, with bundreds more to follow as soon as they can secure their portable property. Some sixty or seventy thousand Confederate troops are stationed between Skidaway and Savannah, under the command of Generals Henry R. Jackson and Waiker, and a State Brigadier General named Law-ton, who are in hourly expectation of an attack from the Federals, who were within about seven mlles of Savannah at the time the Ericsson left Port Royal. An obstruction of rafts of timber, bound with railroad iron, and chained together, extending across the river, in the neighborhood of Fort Jackson, and down about a mile and half, has lately been made for the purpose of keeping the Union gunboats at bay, whils soms forty heavy guns are ranged on both sldes of the river, ready at a moment's warning to beloh forth destruction to the The rebel troops, although badly disci-plined, badly clothed, and worse fed, are reported as determined to stand to the last; but it is the decided opinion of our inform-ant, from what he has already seen of the Union troops, that the chivalry will never be able to hold out against Unionists. Gov. Brown has made an additional call for 13,000 troops, who were to report for duty on the 4th of this month. They were to receive $50 bounty. In case the requi-

AT BOURBON HOUSE. There has been no material change to note in the five stock market at the Bonrbon House during the past week. The trading feeling has been fair, and all have met with steady sales at nominal rates. But few remain in pens unsold. Money seems to be plenty, and the feeling among business men seems to be gradually improving, so that we begin to realize the old spirit of trade. The receipts of cattle have been fair, and the demand limited, owing to the small purchases Government contractors have made. There is but little probability at present of their resuming the purchase of stock at this point soon, as their armies that they have to sup-ply are fest changing their locations, and new scenes of trade are constantly presenting themselves; but as soon as the trade is resumed here we will advise our patrons. Heavy shipping cattle are in demand, and meet with a limited, and the demand fair; all sold as fast as they

NEWS FROM AMERICA IN PARIS. Faris (Seb 13.) correspondence of London Chronicle.]

The Patrie says that it has received a private dispatch from Washington which states that the United States government is about to send an expedition to occupy Austin, so as to prevent the export of cotton to Europe via Mexico.

Some of the evening journals mention, on the authority of New York letters, a report that the Southern States have made propositions at Washington for an arrangement with the North; but Southern gentlemen in Paris express strong doubts of its truth.

A NATIVE CANDIDATE OF ROTALTY. [Paris (Feb. 12) correspondence of the London Globe. Respecting the throne of Mexico, and its soceptance by a Hapeburg, the principle of hereditary right, so peremptorily upheld in the case of the dispossessed claimants in Italy, has led some journals to notice the existence of a direct descendant of the Azteo dynasty of Montezuma. He teaches grammar in the Indian College at Mexico, and his name is Chimelpoposam, which sig-nifies in the native dialect, "Burning

That son of so many kings is a Professor of Grammar at the Indian College. He is called Chimalponocam (smoking buckler), a name Grammar at the Indian College. He is called Chimalpopocam (smoking buckler), a name which was also borne by one of his glorious ancestors. We find these details in the recital of a traveler, who is a Prof. s or at the College de France, and who forme part of the French Academy. "M. Chimalpopocam," says M. Ampere, "affirms that he is a descendant of Montezuma. He even declared to me that, at the time of the United States expedition, some overtures were States expedition, some overtures were made to him on the antject; but he only regarded them as intrigues, to which he took care not to lend himself." We are not ut all in the secrets of diplomacy, and know not whether an Azteo restoration enters into its views; we confine ourselves to reminding it of this fragment from the voyage of M. Ampere to Mexico. Perhaps M. Chimalpopocam would show himself more accessible to any overtures which might be made to him at the present time. WHAT THE ARCHDUKE MAXIMILIAN REQUIRES.

(From the Paris Patric, February 14-1 We are assured that the propositions made by the Mexican envoys to the Archduke Maximilian have been seriously examined by the Prince, and that he, before giving a definitive reply, has demanded that the following conditions shall be fulfilled:

That the population of Mexico shall manifest their desire to establish a liberal monarchy in the country; that they shall freely make known their intentions as to the choice of a sovereign, and that their choice shall be ratified by Europe.

MEXICAN NEWS FROM PRANCE AND ITALY. It asserted that the Government has said there was confirmation of the news via America that the Spanlards had suscained a decided defeat by the Mexicans, and that the dispatch of reinforcements is rendered

The Tempes and other French journals demonstrate that a monarchial restoration in North America would only benefit Spain and the Spanish monarchial luterests existing there.

Beron Ricasoli stated in Parliament that the Government had no intention to send ships to reinforce the Mexican expedition, few frigates to the colonies to protect Italian aubjects.

JEFF. DAVIS' COTTON ROUTE THROUGH MEXICO. [Paris (Feb. 14) correspondence of London Chronicle. The Patrie reverts to a subject it had before mentioned as a consequence of the oo cupation by the allied Powers of the coast of the State of Tameulipas, a province of Mexico, adjoining Texas, which, as is well known, forms part of the States separated from those of the North. When, in Ootober last, President Davis was informed of the combined expedition which was being prepared against Mexico, he occupied himself with establishing a mode of transit across the Southern States as far as the frontier which separates Texas from Mexico. That road, it is said, is in full progress of execution, and is joined to the railways and canals which run through the Southern States in every direction.

Europe may thus supply herself with cotton

It is needless to add, remarks your contemporary, that the shipment of cotton in the Mexican ports will not be in opposition to any of the principles of international AFFAIRS IN JAPAN-INFLUENCE OF THE UNITED STATES MINISTER. [Hong Kong (Dec. 31) correspondence of the Lon to

Mr. Townsend Harris, who first opened Japan, is still pursuing his quiet, effectual line of policy, unaffected by the general agitation that has distressed the other ministers, with Mr. Aloock at their head. He has, beyond all question, the peculiar ti qualities required in a minister to such a country as this. His immobility amid continued alarms and assassinations has evidently ecoured for him the respect of this strange people, and Mr. Alcock's foolish from Jeddo when the American Secretary of Legation was murdered, never contracted more deplorably with Mr. Harris' stay in the city than it does now when the tangible results of either policy are beginning to appear.

We allude more immediately to the following item of intelligence in the Japan Herald, of Nov. 80, as quoted by a Shange hos contemporary:

"We are able to announce that the Amerioan Minister resident in Japan, H. E. Townsend Harris, has succeeded in getting from the Japanese Government, for the mother of the late H. C. Heusken, late Acting Secretary of the United States Legation, who was murdered at Jeddo on the night of the 15th of January last, the sum of

It will be seen that the indemnification obtained for the friends of his late subordinate is nearly equal to what each of the mittee, asked to be discharged from analyy petidestruction of the summer palace will obtain; but the one was the result of conquest, while the other has merely proceeded from an attidude of cool firmness on the part of the United States Minister.

England, in such large numbers at this season. All seem to be full, and their charges are as high as usual.

The threat of war has done much to destroy the confidence—that continued high prices had begun to create in the Indian cotton market. Speculation has been wild in Bombay, and a continued fall of 1d. In the pound of cotton will be simply ruin to some of the largest English houses. The whole t-indency of court all way and road system will be to attract cotton to the west—to Bombay and Sedasheghar. The export from Calcutta will, for some years, be trifling, and the quality inferior. At the first public sale, some eix weeks ago, high prices were realized; but the staple was short and the bales dirty, the whole having been brought up merely as an experimental shipment.
